

CONTENTS OF SIMP (NEW SERIES) 8

CONTENTS Of SIMP 8 and Introduction by the Editor i-v

Terada Yoshitaka, a Luminaire of Ethnomusicology, Anthropology of Music, and Archiving

Rastko Jakovljevic vi-viii

Refining versus Simplification in Sape Players' Transmission and Performance through Sound Manipulation

Ahmad Faudzi Musib 1-18

The Tuvan Khöömei Throat Singing and its Igil Accompaniment as Instrument of Nature

Choduraa Tumat and Bernard Kleikamp 19-30

The Ideals of Nature in Guqin Performance Practice: The 7-String Chinese Zither

Hoh Chung Shih 31-56

Sound of 'Lofi' in the Subtropical Afternoon: Okinawan Ryukyu Karen In the View of Art Therapy and Well-Being

Huang Wan 57-80

The Future of Instrumental Sound and Instrumentalists

Gisa Jähnichen 81-90

Bamboo Siblings: Some Mouth Organs in Continental Southeast Asia and China

Liu Xiangkun 91-106

Breaking Free: A New Conversation for Viola and Zhongruan

Lok, Sulwyn and Andrew Filmer 107-114

The Mandoharp of Amaradheva and its Use in the 1980s and 1990s

Meddegoda, Chinthaka P. 115-122

The Production of Tabla in Sri Lanka

Meddegoda, Nishadi Prageetha 123-140

New Materialism in Ethnographic Organology and Pa'O Khaya

Miller, Christopher A. 141-158

Biegga, Čáhci, Duoddarat, and other 'Geo-Phones'. Polyorganicity of Sápmi and Environmental Accompaniments to Sámi Joik

Renzi, Nicola 159-176

Embracing Nature for Cultural Continuity: Waza Trumpets and the Musical Tradition of the Berta

Teffera, Timkehet 177-194

Woong Yi Lee's Transnational 'Musicking' Research

Xue Tong 195-204

Re-Sounding the Azande Manza Xylophone Collection Through a DIY Replica Instrument and Artistic Experimentation

Yip, Adilia 205-226

The Function of the Timbre of Musical Instruments and its Reflection in Religious Ceremonies of China

Zhong Wei Cheng 227-242

About SIMP, EB Members, Call for Submissions, Publication Ethics and Malpractice Statement 243-249